For the third year in a row, Arizona State University tops U.S. News & World Report’s list of the “most innovative schools” in the nation, a recognition of ASU’s groundbreaking initiatives, partnerships, programs and research. The “most innovative school” ranking represents much more than a single initiative or program. It recognizes the bold new model we, as a community, have created together.

Through your indispensable efforts and support, we are not only building the New American University, but transforming our state’s economy and creating a brighter future for generations to come.

Sincerely,

The Trustees of ASU
